

Make Your Lovemaking Last Longer with Durex Performax and Other Tactics

Do you have problems with climaxing a little too soon? If so, you aren't alone. In fact, just about every guy has climaxed earlier than he wanted to at some point in his life. If you know any guys who say they haven't, they are most likely lying.

Nonetheless, climaxing before you were really ready to be finished can be disappointing and can even be a bit embarrassing. Luckily, there are several things you can do to help prolong ejaculation so your lovemaking can last longer. One of the easiest steps you can take to help prolong climax is to use a condom. In fact, condoms such as Durex Performax are made specifically to help you last longer.

Performax condoms, which are made by Durex, are created with a special lubricant that is placed both inside and outside of the condom. The lubricant used in Performax condoms helps to prolong your excitement so you can last longer during your sexual encounter. This is because the lubricant on the outside of the Performax condom is designed to intensify the action by reducing friction, which makes your encounter more pleasurable for your partner. The inside of the Performax condom, however, contains a special lubricant that helps to control your climax and give you more control over when your lovemaking will be finished.

Aside from using Performax condoms, there are other things you can do to help delay climax when having sex. One thing that you can do in order to prevent climaxing too soon is to slow down your action. Some men find it to be helpful to pull out for a period of time in order to give their motor time to cool down. When you do this, take that time and use it as an opportunity to be romantic with your partner. Not only will it give you time to cool off, it will blow her mind and make her think you are an awesome lover.

Durex Performax condoms can help you delay gratification, but working on muscle control will also help you gain more control over your sex life. Some say that by squeezing the same muscles you squeeze down on when you have to urinate, you can hold in your climax. You don't have to wait until you are having sex to exercise this muscle, however. Spend a few times each day working that muscle and it will be stronger when the time comes.

It may sound cliché, but your mind is also a very powerful tool when it comes to preventing climax. If you feel like you are about to climax too soon, try thinking about something that is not arousing. It doesn't necessarily have to be about a person that you find unattractive. Rather, you can think about something that happened at work that day or anything else that will help you get your mind off of your excitement.

Durex Performax condoms can help you last longer and be the lover you always wanted to be. At the same time, there are many other tactics you can use along with your Performax condoms that will help you last even longer.
