

Abunza, Is it a Scam?

Many people have been scammed before by people trying to make money by promising wealth and happiness and taking many of us for a ride. It is not fair to those whose companies are legit and want to actually make you the consumer money. I believe that Abunza is one of those companies that is here for us The little Guy. I believe that there is a real potential to make a decent living working in your pajamas, and being your own boss, and at an affordable price.

To tell if a business is a scam or not you need to remember a couple of tips. You need to do your own research and see what others are saying about this company. You can contact other that have already joined, they will either be the biggest supporter or the the worst. From what I have searched myself, I have found that there really isn't anything out there that is bad about the company. Seriously in forums and on my Google search there are only good things to be said. I've talked to other members both long term and short and everyone seems to be completely satisfied with the direction the company is headed, not to mention the service and products provided.

Compare this to a Passport to Wealth search, you get articles such as before you buy Passport to Wealth read this and get the facts. With Abunza website it is all right there, no hidden fees and no bull. Also it is a team building program so you have a sponsor or mentor that tells you all of the facts, and can answer any questions about this company that you may have. I feel that this network is really a legit company that actually wants you to succeed.

Don't take my word for it, go out and do your own research before starting your own home based business. But compared to many of there competitors they have highest popularity and the best compensation plan, and for $1197 you get a complete online business with resale rights to thousands of digital products in both English and Spanish which by themselves cost well over small investment price.

So is Abunza a scam? The answer is No, because even if you are bad at recruiting people to pay the small investment to do what you do, you still have e-books and digital products with resale rights so that you can make a fortune selling. You get to keep the profits of every digital product or e-book that you sell through the included retail shopping cart.

About the Author

Like to have a real web business? Capible of making real money? Al Freeman invites you to his Abunza Business website for everything you need to start your own online business. He includes advertising, mentoring and a training and support package to guarantee success.

<http://TheAbunzaFormula.com>

Source: <http://www.spivo.com>