

Abunza vs. Passport to Wealth

When searching for a home based business thousands of results come up. This is because it is without a doubt every Americans dream to be your own boss, spend more time with the family, to work in your pajamas, to wake up when ever you want, or even get that afternoon nap. Whatever, you get the point. Home based businesses are hot and companies such as Abunza and Passport to Wealth may be close to the hottest. So which one is better? If you want to find out read on because I have done my research so that you don't have to.

When it comes to the question of which is more profitable, Abunza wins by over a $900 landslide. To join Passport of Wealth you have to pay $997, that's $200 less than Abunza. Well you say Passport is cheaper. Not even close.

Passport to Wealth takes your first 2 sales when Abunza delivers 100% of each sale directly to you. While you make almost $1900 more than you would as a member of Passport since you have to give up 2 grand before making any money. So for every sale you get with Abunza you get to keep $947 but with the Passport to Wealth 2up plan you give more of your money away.

An added bonus is that with the Abunza you get a residual income without doing anything. Every time that someone joins a member on your first tier you get paid $250. With Passport to Wealth you get paid only if you bring people in under you every time. If you are a persons sponsor you get there first 2 sales. With Abunza 2 tier business package you get paid every time a new person is added under you forever.

Both of these companies sell digital products including software and e-books which have resell rights. While Abunza adds Vacation travel and Cruise vouchers. Amazingly there isn't the usual sales pitch or speech involved. I don't know which company has more digital products then the other or even if they are the same but they both have added bonuses that you should check out before making a decision.

After reading reviews of Passport to Wealth you have to pay a monthly web hosting fee, as with The Abunza Lifetime Membership it all included free. Another thing to consider is that neither one of these programs are refundable. So keep that in mind when you are making a decision. Personally Abunza seems to have everything that Passport to Wealth EDC Gold and others offer at a fraction of the cost, with just as much or more earning potential. But don't take my word for it check Abunza out for yourselves.
